Hi,

I am too lazy to actually fill out a Wylde W. Chicken nomination form. However, I would like to nominate the dC, the large group of boys. Although they have been involved in some problematic events, they do deserve recognition for their large number of original actions. For example, they have sponsored their own basketball and soccer teams — which are doing marvelously — and are now designing their own t-shirts. They are also making their own celebrity soccer jerseys, which will be for sale; that is, you should be able to buy a jersey with the name of your favorite member of the dC!

They also planned a spontaneous bike trip to Chicago, which has not yet been done, and have adopted special group nicknames for each other. This is only the tip of the iceberg regarding their feats. If this is not creative beyond the call of duty, what is?

If they have already been nominated, I second the motion — I'm guessing that that was what the email you sent was about.

I am not, and have never been, a member of this group.

Thanks for considering my nomination,

-Jack

Hi,

As you may remember, I nominated the dC for a Wylde Q. Chicken award. I would like to supplement this now by adding what they have done since then. They did, indeed create personalized T-shirts for themselves. They also had a signing ceremony for all the players (in the lounge), directed by coach ivaR (Ravi Solter) and Plex (Dan Pleck). I took photos then, and at the subsequent photo shoot, for the Gargoyle. I found this very fun, and indeed, very Wylde!

Hi,

Here are some photos. Sorry, the quality isn't great. There are some other things that would be good to have, like Dan Pleck's long speech (which was very funny) and a picture of them actually in their jerseys, or on the soccer field. I'll see what I can do about that.
